

RIVERSIDE MUSIC

Saxophone Fingering Chart and Treble Clef Staff

Fingering chart for saxophone key C4. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C5. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C6. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C7. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C8. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C9. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C10. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C11. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.

Fingering chart for saxophone key C12. The diagram shows the key mechanism with circles for pads and rectangles for levers. The left hand is positioned on the left side of the key, and the right hand is on the right side. The treble clef staff below is empty.